

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

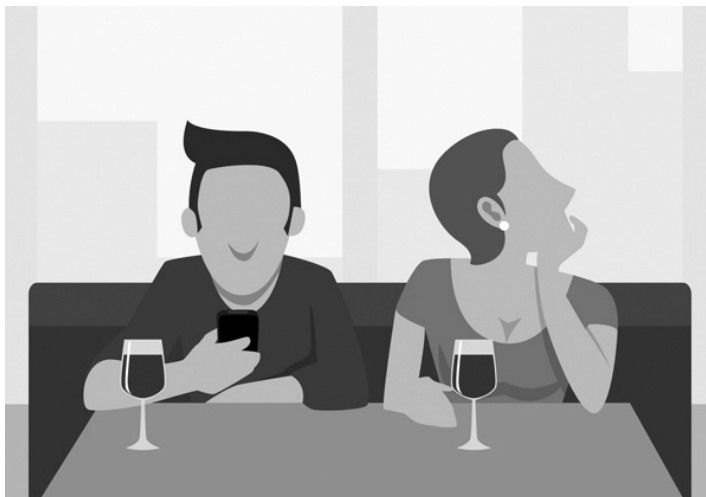

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Talking about a blind date.

Learning Outcome

Understand detailed descriptions of real or imaginary events and experiences in present, past or future and in spoken or written texts.

Ask your partner:

- What do you think about blind dates or blind dating?
- Do you like to 'go Dutch' (each person pays for themselves) when you go out on a first date? Why or why not?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about relationships and use colloquial expressions.
- I can talk about what I will have been doing and what I will have done.
- I can talk about connected events and imaginary situations.

Let's Explore!

If things go south*, you can always come home and live with your parents.

* "If things go south" means if things go wrong or badly.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Vanessa: Well it's eight o'clock now.

Peter: She will be here. I'm sure of it.

Vanessa: Just think, after tonight, you will have fallen in love.

Peter: You think so?

Vanessa: Peter if I were you, I wouldn't get my hopes up too high. If I go on a date, I usually lower my expectations. That way if the date goes bad, I won't be too disenchanted. When you have a big disappointment, you often get melancholy. I want you to protect yourself.

Peter: It's cool. I have calibrated my expectations. If things go south, I will be fine.

Vanessa: Really? If Sally were here, she would be able to give you better advice.

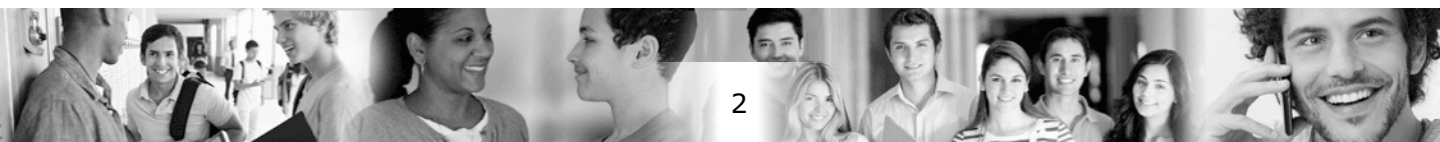

Peter: If Sally were here, she would have blogged about this as if it were a boxing match.

Vanessa: True. Anyway, if it goes sideways, don't fret about it. By midnight tonight, this whole thing will have blown over. By tomorrow, we will have forgotten all about it, and by Sunday we will have been laughing about it like it was a distant memory.

Peter: Or, by midnight tonight, SWEETGIRL and I will have been talking and carrying on for hours on end. By tomorrow, we will have completely fallen head over heels for each other and by Sunday, I will have been smiling ear to ear for about 48 hours straight.

Vanessa: Good luck Peter. If you need me, I'll be here.

Peter: You're a good friend.

Let's Practice!

Vanessa is lowering Peter's expectations.

Instructions: Read the sentences. Circle the correct option to correctly complete each sentence. Practice saying the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. After tonight, you will have fallen / felt / have fallen in love.
2. By midnight tonight, this whole thing will have blown / blow / blew over.
3. By tomorrow, we will forgets / is forgetting / have forgotten all about it.
4. By midnight tonight, SWEETGIRL and I will talked / have been talking / having talk for hours.
5. By tomorrow, we will have completely fallen / completely fell / have completely fallen head over heels for each other.
6. By Sunday, I will have been smile / smiled / smiling ear to ear for about 48 hours straight.

Let's Practice!

Vanessa gives Peter some advice.

Instructions: Read the sentences. Write the missing words. Complete the sentences with the corresponding words from the word bank.

Word Bank

usually lower / I wouldn't get my / were here / would have blogged / often get melancholy

1. Peter, if I were you, _____ hopes up too high.
2. If I go on a date, I _____ my expectations.
3. When you have a big disappointment, you _____.
4. If Sally _____, she would be able to give you better advice.
5. If Sally heard this, she _____ about this like it was a boxing match.

Extension Activity

Write an article on online dating!

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- With a partner, brainstorm ideas for a magazine about online dating.
- Write a magazine article about online dating.
- Include imaginary quotations from people who are for and against online dating.
- Make your article 200 words long.
- Share the article with a partner and ask for feedback.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I brainstorm ideas for an online article.

☐ ☐

I write a magazine article about online dating.

☐ ☐

I include quotations from people who are for and against online dating.

☐ ☐

I give feedback and take feedback.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- disenchanted (adjective): disappointed
e.g. I am disenchanted with the whole dating process.
- melancholy (adjective): feeling sad, and perhaps depressed
e.g. That song has so much melancholy and sadness.
- to calibrate (verb): to determine, check, or rectify e.g. I have calibrated the site on my rifle. Now it is accurate.
- to fret (verb): to worry
e.g. I have been fretting about my date for a week.
- to blow over (verb): to pass over without effect
e.g. All your problems will blow over.
- to fall head over heels (expression): to be madly in love
e.g. She fell head over heels in love with him.

Learning Points

Future Perfect and Future Perfect Continuous Tenses

You use the Future Perfect in combination with expressions of time in order to describe an action or an event that will take place before a specific time.

You use the Future Perfect Continuous in combination with expressions of time in order to describe an event in the future that has not reached an end before another one starts.

The Future Perfect has two forms:

will have + past participle, or am/is/are + going to have + past participle

Unlike Simple Future forms, both forms are interchangeable.

Examples:

By tomorrow, we will have forgotten about it.

By tomorrow, we're going to have forgotten about it.

Here is how you form the Future Perfect Continuous:

subject + will have been + present participle

Example:

I will have been smiling for 48 hours straight by the time you see me on Sunday.*

Examples:

- Just think, after tonight, you will have fallen in love.
- By midnight tonight, this whole thing will have blown over.
- By tomorrow, we will have forgotten all about it.
- By Sunday, we will have been laughing about it like it was a distant memory.
- I will have been talking and carrying on for hours on end.*
- By tomorrow, we will have completely fallen head over heels for each other.

Learning Points

The Present Real and Unreal Conditionals

You can use the Present Real Conditional to describe cause and effect relationships between real events or situations.

You can use the Present Unreal Conditional to describe cause and effect relationships between hypothetical events or situations.

The Present Real Conditional is also called the Zero Conditional.

You use the structure:

If/when ... Simple Present, ... Simple Present
or Simple Present ... if/when ... Simple Present

In the Present Real Conditional you can introduce a condition using either "if" or "when". When you use "if" you are trying to say that the result of the condition may or may not come true.

When you use "when" you are trying to say that the result of the condition always comes true.

You use the Present Simple tense to write the zero conditional.

The Present Unreal Conditional is also called the Second Conditional.

You use the structure:

If... Simple Past, ... would + verb or Would + verb ... if ... Simple Past

Example: If Sally were here, she would be able to give you better advice.
It is impossible for Sally to be here. The condition is not real.

If I were you, I wouldn't get my hopes up.

You use If I were you ... to give a strong piece of advice.

Examples:

- When you have a big disappointment, you often get melancholy.
- If Sally were here, she would be able to give you better advice.
- If Sally were here, she would have blogged about this as if it were a boxing match.
- If you need me, I'll be here.
- If I go on a date, I usually lower my expectations.

